The junior class completed a variety of money raising activities, including candy sales and selling valentine carnations.

"Selling carnations was very successful," said junior advisor Mrs. Sue Pack. Juniors also sponsored a valentine candy contest where students paid a quarter to guess the number of candies in a jar.

One of the most exciting events was winning homecoming spirit week competition. They defeated the seniors, who finished second, by a five point margin.

Henry Bustamante enjoys his lunch hour with Shauneen Boedigheimer.

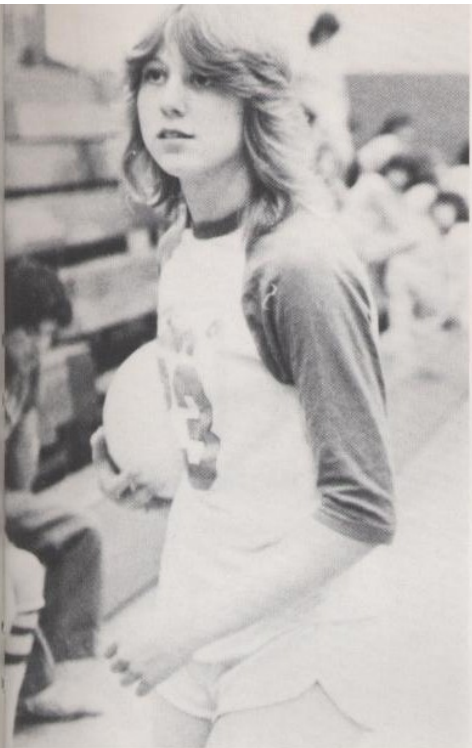

The sophomore class used their energy in homecoming to win the intramural cross country race, and came out in third place overall.

The sophomores started a new fund raising activity titled "The Class Feud". Each class competed with teams of five players for credit card calculators presented to each member of the winning team. The winning class was also presented with a check from Brooks, Bank of Oregon for $25.00. The winning class was none other but the sophomores. Their team consisted of Brent Counts, Shauneen Boeigheimer, Karl Lindsey, Karen Read, and Chris Weathers.

Although they were the smallest class they kept involved in school activities. According to their adviser Mrs. Chris Welch, the class did a very good job!

Six Packs take intramural volleyball title

A feeling filtered through our school this year—watch out for the freshmen because they really have their act together.

For the first time in the four year history of intramural volleyball, both teams playing for the championship title were made up entirely of freshmen. Mr. Moore's P.E. class came in second to the "Six Packs" who were from the homeroom of Mrs. Pack.

Another accomplishment was pulling together to win the National Honor Society canned food drive. They stuck together to go on to win the spirit stick several times this past year at pep assemblies and teamed up with the juniors to pull off a victory in Powder Puff football against the sophomore-senior team during spirit week.

Freshmen class advisor Nancy Harper commented, "They work well together, are full of ideas and have the energy to carry out their ideas. They're a terrific class to work with."

Trying to ignore the pain, John Dasso pushes himself through the course at Bush Park during the District cross-country race.
