SCOTT CLEMENT

Senior Class wins homecoming and other class competition.

SYMPTOMS: Anticipation, jitters, enthusiasm, (occasional apathy), scholarship applications, and SAT tests.

DIAGNOSIS: Senioritis!!!

TREATMENT: The prescribed treatment for any senior with the above symptoms, was to face the upcoming year, and according to class President Mary Saalfeld, "Make it a year to remember!"

The members of the class of '85 began the year by winning the overall homecoming spirit award. The rest of the year was followed by Senior Slave Day, the ordering of caps and gowns, and the very important task of deciding on future plans.

The class of 1986 started the year off by selling concessions at all of the boys and girls home basketball games. The junior class and the Cougars pep band shared the work and the profit. The concession stand was the junior class's main fund raiser of the year. The juniors' advisor was Mr. Larry Dunlap. He had been the junior advisor for three years.

The juniors had the smallest class in the school with a total of 46 members. Since the junior class was so small, it was hard for them during pep assemblies to be the loudest in class competition, but they finally came through to win it.

"Since our class is so small, it has given us the chance to really get to know each other," said Cathy Cuff.

The juniors also took skill (ASVAB) tests and Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Tests as they begun to think more seriously about their future and career goals.

Choosing class rings was the big event for the sophomore class. Each year a representative comes to the school and shows the students different styles of rings to buy. The student then picks out the ring he wants to buy.

Since the sophomores had been through a year of school they were more aware of things going on and became more involved in class activities.

There were 59 students in the sophomore class and Andy Weathers said, "We all participated together as a group and gave each other support and encouragement."
