Some Impressions Never Fade

SENIORS

Senior auction raises $2,500

The senior class consisted of 57 students. This wasn't a very big class considering that as freshmen they started out with 71 students.

The seniors had many fundraisers. Included were the bottle drives, car washes, and the balloon sale. The biggest fundraiser was the spaghetti feed and senior auction. They raised over $2,500.

The money will go towards their drug and alcohol free party after graduation, which was hopefully a trip to Disneyland to participate in the annual "Grad-Nite" party.

In her best clothes, Jennifer Iverson shows school spirit on Nerd Day

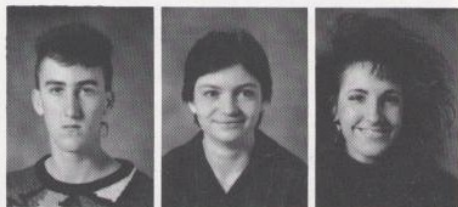

The Junior class got off to a slow start as far as fundraising goes, but hope to earn more money as the year goes by in preparation for their senior year. Some of the fundraisers they did were a carwash and a candy sale that didn't bring in very much profit.

Junior class president Barbie May said that it was really hard to get fundraisers organized because "no one wanted to participate and it's always the same people that do everything for every fundraiser." She hoped to get more people involved.

The best way the Sophomore class of ninety-one could be described was that they were a "stick together group". They received first place for their tremendous effort during homecoming spirit week. It was the hall decorations and the assemblies that assured them a victory over the rest of the student body. It was during the Homecoming Football game that they received their award.

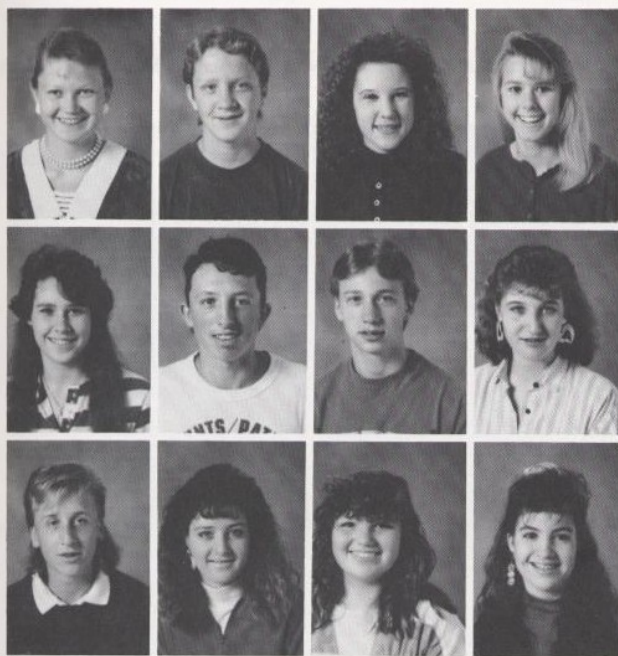

"If they put their minds to it and work together as a whole they could probably do anything they wanted to do," said class advisor Mrs. Alice Soto. The Sophomore class also won the National Honor Society food drive.

Sarah Pearmine and Barbara Barrera work on their Spanish assignment in class.
